SAID SHE DIED MANY YEARS AGO

But Gettysburg Woman is Still Living and will Contest Estate Case in Washington Courts. Met Future Husband during Reunion.

Alleging that Mary Crosta Bryan, formerly of Gettysburg, had died thirty five years ago in Philadelphia, the brother and sister of Charles H. Bryan, who died several months ago in Washington, D. C., and was the supposed dead woman's husband, secured letters of administration on his estate in Washington.

Mrs. Bryan's maiden name was Crosta and she is the sister of Miss Emma Crosta, who has been a life long resident of Gettysburg, the parents and family having had their residence for years at the old Crosta homestead on Baltimore street.

It was in 1879, during one of the first reunions of the veterans of the Civil War, that Charles H. Bryan, an honorably discharged soldier, made a visit to Gettysburg and boarded with the Crosta family at their old home. While there, he persuaded Miss Mary Crosta to go with him to York where they were married.

They returned to Gettysburg and lived here a short time and later went to Washington where they also resided. Later Mrs. Bryan discovered that her husband was unfaithful and she left him and returned to her home here. She lived with her sisters at the old homestead until about five years ago when she went to Philadelphia where she has since been living with another sister, Mrs. Lena Schleich.

A hearing will be held in Washington Saturday to secure the revocation of the letters of administration granted to the brother and sister of Mr. Bryan. It will be held before Judge McCoy, the Congressman from New Jersey who, with Congressman Covington, of Maryland, was recently appointed to the Supreme Court bench by President Wilson. The estate is said to be worth several thousand dollars.

Charles S. Duncan Esq., of Gettysburg, is one of the counsel for Mrs. Bryan, and one of the witnesses will be Fred Thorn, who lived near the Crosta home in 1879, and well remembers Mr. Bryan.

MRS. GRANVILLE STULTZ

Pneumonia Causes Death of Highland Township Resident.

Mrs. Granville Stultz died at the home of William Carbaugh, near Knoxlyn, at 1:10 Wednesday afternoon aged 86 years, 11 months and 4 days. She had been ill with pneumonia since Saturday.

Mrs. Stultz had been living at the Carbaugh home for the past two years. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry DeMuth, of Thurmont. Her husband died about eight years ago and she leaves one son, Robert Stultz, of Highland township; and a brother, Jeremiah DeMuth, of Thurmont.

Funeral Saturday afternoon at one o'clock from the home of Mr. Carbaugh, conducted by Rev. D. W. Woods. Interment in Evergreen Cemetery, Gettysburg.

St. James Sunday School Workers Produce Entertainment.

Members of St. James Sunday School gave a pageant in the Chapel Thursday evening depicting the development of the Sunday School from early ages to the present time, when all the departments of the organized school were shown. The entertainment was given at the expense of a great deal of time and trouble, special costumes being worn in a number of the scenes, and it was witnessed by a fair sized audience. During the program a number of hymns were sung.

GETS SENTIMENT ON EXCURSIONS

Colored Excursions Subject of Discussion in Business Places when Visited by Railroad's Traveling Passenger Agent.

In order to get the general sentiment of Gettysburg men concerning the running of colored excursions from Baltimore to this place, M. T. McNeal, traveling passenger agent for the Western Maryland Railway, visited town to-day and interviewed a number of business men. His trip here followed the presentation of a petition within the past month signed by local merchants and manufacturers protesting against the custom of bringing Baltimore negroes here.

Mr. McNeal in presenting his reasons for running the excursions stated that the business meant about $6000 a year to the road and that they did not feel like stopping that source of revenue unless there was very good reason for it. Many business houses were visited and it is stated that he received little encouragement.

One merchant, in replying to a request for an expression of opinion on the matter, stated that, while he did not come in direct contact with the negro excursionists, he did not believe the excursions an advantage to the town and that, personally, he did not enjoy paying his share of court costs for cases following their periodic visits to the town.

Another business man told Mr. McNeal that, on one excursion day, he had to close his store at five o'clock in the evening because he regarded it as dangerous to stay about. This was the day of the shooting affair at Hotel Gettysburg.

A third well known business man stated that he had no objection to the negroes as a race but that it was their conduct while here with which he found fault. Continuing he said "Why don't you take them to Pen Mar". The Western Maryland man stated that they had not thought of that plan.

A fourth said that the colored excursionists did not affect him personally but that he believed their presence here, in view of their frequently objectionable conduct, was not good for the town.

This same general expression of opinion was met on almost every side. Gettysburg people state that they do not object to law abiding negroes coming, that they should be allowed here and welcomed, but that the typical Baltimore excursion crowd is a nuisance. In contrast they point to the Hagerstown colored excursion several months ago which brought as orderly a crowd as ever visited the town.

What will be the result of Mr. McNeal's canvass of the town is not stated.

$17,200 FARM A GIFT

Magnificent Present to Lutheran Orphanage at Loysville.

Gettysburg Lutherans are rejoicing because of a magnificent gift to the Loysville Orphan Home, in Perry county, of an adjoining farm of 172 acres, known as the Arnold farm. The purchase of the farm was from S. B. Shumaker, with money given the executive board by Frederick Mehring, of Keymar, Maryland. The price paid was $100 per acre. This is a most valuable acquisition to the Home property and the Lutherans who support this worthy institution are loud in their praise of Mr. Mehring.

COST HIM $2943

Majority of Mr. Brodbeck's Expenditures to Committees.

According to his expense account filed with Clerk of the Courts Olinger it cost A. R. Brodbeck $2943 in his unsuccessful campaign at the recent election. Of this $1368 went to the York County committee, and $429 to the Adams County committee. A large part of the remainder was for advertising.

FRUIT GROWERS' ANNUAL MEETING

Adams County Orchardists to Have Privilege of Listening to Many Experts. Will Hear Discussions on Various Topics.

Next to selling the apple crop, the third week in December has come to be the big event for Adams County apple growers. Each year since 1903 the annual convention of the Fruit Growers Association of Adams County has been held at that time.

The Association has busied itself in numberless ways in the interest of the fruit growers, prominent among which are improvements in transportation facilities, advertising Adams County as a fruit center, and holding up to its members the importance of giving a square deal with every barrel of Adams County apples. The convention is the culminating activity of the year.

Most Adams County fruit growers are also farmers, and all of them are good citizens. With this in view the association has spread out in its lines of work so that it now stands for the best of everything in Adams County. It is with this in view that the program of the present convention has been arranged.

This year the convention will open at noon on Wednesday, December 16, and continue until Friday night with five sessions devoted to horticultural and agricultural subjects, the evenings as usual being devoted to lectures and entertainments.

The day sessions will be addressed by Dr. C. J. Marshall, state veterinarian; Dr. Donald McCaskey, the road building expert of Lancaster County; Prof. M. G. Kains, horticulturist, Prof. M. S. McDowell, director of agricultural extension work, and Miss Pearl McDonald, instructor in domestic science, all from Pennsylvania State College; Prof. Knapp, of Cornell University, in charge of agricultural extension work; J. W. Burk, of Batavia, New York, president of the Genesee Fruit Growers' Exchange; and Prof. W. M. Scott, entomologist and pathologist, of Baltimore. These speakers are all experts and a particularly strong program has been prepared.

Full details will be announced in a few days.

COUNTY MEETING

Temperance Rally to be Held in Presbyterian Lecture Room

A county temperance rally, under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., will be held in the Presbyterian lecture room, Saturday, December 5, at 2 o'clock. An interesting program will be given by representatives of the various unions of the county; also reports from delegates who attended the State W. C. T. U. convention at Oil City. Everybody welcome. The regular meeting of the Gettysburg W. C. T. U. was held on Thursday evening with Miss Lizzie Bushman, Steinwehr avenue. A goodly number were in attendance and the regular business was transacted.

MARRIAGE LICENSE

PLAN FOR HOME TALENT EVENTS

At Least Four Amateur Plays will be Given in Gettysburg during the Winter. Various Organizations Make their Plans.

Gettysburg's amateurs are looking forward to the presentation of at least four home talent plays here within the next two months and preparations are already well under way for several of them.

The first of the series will be "The Arrival of Kitty", a roaring college farce which will be given in Brua Chapel on the evening of December 12. This play was presented here by professionals several years ago, Hal Johnson having the leading role. It was declared one of the best comedies ever produced in Gettysburg and those who have seen the rehearsals for its coming presentation, by the dramatic association at college, say that it will make a decided hit with the big audience that is sure to see it.

Early in the winter the High School Seniors will give the annual class play and it is probable that the auditorium of the school building will be used. The Seniors take special pride in giving this production for it is usually out of the proceeds that they purchase a gift for the school which is presented at Commencement time. The members of this year's graduating class have no little dramatic talent and may be relied upon to give a good account of themselves.

"Bought" will be the title of a play to be produced in Xavier Hall some time during the month of January by members of the Xavier Dramatic Association who will be trained by Rev. W. F. Boyle. "The Penalty of Pride", the play given by this organization last winter, is well remembered and this year's offering will be just as enjoyable, it is stated.

The Gettysburg Fire Company is planning to have a benefit show some time during the winter months and a committee is now casting about trying to secure a suitable play. Whether they will give a drama or a more elaborate musical show has not been announced but it is rather thought that a small cast play will be used.

Other organizations in town also have dramatics in prospect but have not made known their plans.

LIFT THE TAX

And County Couples Can Get Permits at Old Rate.

Clerk of the Courts Olinger has decided to lift the twenty cent tax on marriage licenses issued in this county, following the publication of the following dispatch from Washington.

Prospective brides and bridegrooms will be happy as the result of an opinion issued by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to-day. In response to hundreds of requests for information, the Commissioner decided that marriage licenses are not subject to the war revenue tax. "You won't get this office to discourage marriages by placing a tax on licenses," said Colonel Osborn. "I'm sure Congress never intended any such step as that."

YOUR CHRISTMAS PRESENT

Change Ironing Day Drudgery To PLEASURE.

The one Iron that will do this is the Monitor Self Heating Sad-Iron

It does away with keeping up a continual fire, walking to and fro from a hot stove, changing irons, shifting handles, and suffering from the heat.

It cuts down the high expense for fuel on ironing day to 1 cent per ordinary ironing; and shortens your ironing period to half the usual time with half the labor.

For convenience, saving of time, strength, and fuel there is nothing like the "Monitor." The heat can be regulated, and the iron is never too hot or too cool.

It is IDEAL in every respect: in the Winter do your ironing in the Sitting Room where it is comfortable. In the Summer do it in the shade where it is cool and delightful.

SANTA SAYS:—"The Monitor Iron is one of woman's greatest comforts and a most acceptable remembrance. It is handsome in design and finish—highly polished and nickel plated—never fails to please, and will be a constant reminder of the giver and the giver's regards."

Our representative will be glad to show you how simple this Iron operates—also tell you how little it costs from now to Christmas if you will drop a card or phone at once to

GERMANS RENEW BATTLE IN WEST

Increased Activity Along Line in Belgium and France.

ALLIES WITHSTAND DRIVE

More Dykes Are Cut In the Vicinity of Ypres and the Invaders Flooded
Out—French Gain in Argonne.

London, Dec. 4.—Increased activity along the entire battle front in Flanders and France, with violent artillery bombardments and infantry on slaughters, presaged the renewal of severe fighting in the western zone.

This announcement was received from Paris and tends to show that the Germans are making desperate efforts to assume the offensive, especially in west Flanders, where they hope to deal the allies a decisive blow and gain their greatest aim of the present campaign in that section of the war zone—the seacoast ports.

Despite the influx of great numbers of fresh troops the Germans have not been able to make any headway or gain any important positions or dislodge the enemy from their line of trenches and commanding positions.

They have resumed their bombardment with heavy guns on the allies' lines in Flanders, especially in the region of Neuport and to the south of Ypres. In this engagement the German plan did not succeed, for the allies resumed their cutting of the dykes in that vicinity and the floods forced the invaders to seek new positions further in the rear of their present line of entrenchments.

According to the official communication from Paris the situation was unchanged along the right wing in northern France and also in the Alsace region, but further to the east and in the region of the Argonne the furious fighting that has characterized the engagements between the Germans and French continues and the French forces have driven back the Germans from many of their lines of trenches and have made gains at many points.

These gains, while small at times, have been continuous and have served to advance the lines of the French and in addition include many strong positions in that section of the long battle line of 300 miles.

On the right bank of the Moselle river, say these official dispatches, the French have occupied Lesmoult, twelve miles from Metz, and the Sigul of Yon, while further to the southeast and in the region of the Vosges, the French also have occupied the Tete de Kaux, to the south of the village of Bonhomme, which dominates the range of hills forming the frontier and has served as an observatory for the Germans.

In Alsace the station of Burnhaupt has been occupied and the French have established themselves on the line comprising Aspach, the bridge of Aspach and Burnhaupt.

Dispatches from Paris say that as the result of a heavy bombardment with new guns recently sent to the West Flanders front, the Germans have been able to make some progress at Dixmude. There is ground for the belief that the invaders have regained their foothold on the western bank of the Yser at this point. Fresh British troops are being hurried to the allies' lines west of Dixmude, particularly in the region of Lampraignes four miles west of the Yser, which is under a terrific artillery fire from the great German howitzers.

It is reported that the fighting in West Flanders has assumed such a critical aspect that Field Marshal Sir John French, commander-in-chief of the British expeditionary forces, has been sent there to take command in person.

Never in the history of warfare has there been massed along a battle front such masses of powerful artillery as the Germans have concentrated there to support their lines from Ostend to the French border. It is reported there are 750,000 German soldiers holding the line from Ostend to Ypres.

KRUPP PLANT ATTACKED

Aviator Flies Over Gun Factory and Drops Explosives.

London, Dec. 4.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company from The Hague quotes a message from Berlin to the effect that the Krupp factory at Essen, Germany, was bombed by an aeroplane.

It is said that bombs were dropped from the aeroplane on the buildings devoted to the manufacture of cannon. The airman escaped uninjured, but the extent of the damage has not been ascertained.

Turks Take Russian Town.

Constantinople, Dec. 4.—It was officially announced that Turkish troops have occupied the Russian town of Ardimitch, thirty miles south by southwest from Batum, on the Black sea. "We are making steady progress through the Tchokor valley," the statement says.

Kaiser at Breslau.

Berlin, Dec. 4.—Kaiser William of Germany spent Wednesday in Breslau where he went to confer with Arch duke Charles Francis Joseph, heir to the Austrian throne, and Archduke Frederick, it was announced.

MAY SHOOT GEN. DE WET

Leader of Boer Revolt Captured by Loyal South Africans.

Cape Town, Dec. 4.—General Christiaan De Wet, leader of the South African rebellion, is now a prisoner, and with other leaders of the revolt, against the British will be court martialed and probably shot.

General De Wet and fifty-two of his followers were captured by an automobile contingent under Colonel Conrad Brits, near Waterburg. The rebels surrendered without firing a shot. After a narrow escape, when he and his followers were all but surrounded on Nov. 21, De Wet fled westward. He was vigorously pursued by converging columns of Colonel Brits' command and finally surrounded.

AUSTRALIAN TROOPS JOIN ARMY IN EGYPT

Soldiers From Antipodes to Fight Against Turks.

London, Dec. 4.—"Australian and New Zealand contingents have been disembarked in Egypt," according to the announcement of the official press bureau, "to assist in the defense of that country, and complete their training there."

"When this training is completed they will go to the front to fight with the other British troops in Europe."

It is supposed that the troops from the antipodes will be used to contest the advance of the Turkish army on the Suez canal. This army was reported several days ago to number 76,000 men. It has been reported as being within thirty miles of the canal.

BRITISH QUELL MUTINY

1000 German Prisoners Overpower
Their Guards in Riot.

London, Dec. 4.—Guards at the Lancaster concentration camp had to charge with bayonets to quell a revolt among the German prisoners in the camp.

More than 1000 prisoners were engaged in the melee. Several of the guards interposed, but were overpowered. The reserves were hurriedly called and were attacked by the rioters armed with bricks and sticks. The soldiers quickly put down the mutiny. The ringleaders were arrested and placed in solitary confinement.

DUTCH KILL SIX BELGIANS

Outbreak in Concentration Camp at Zeist Put Down by Troops.

London, Dec. 4.—Rioting broke out in the Belgian concentration camp at Zeist, Holland, according to Het Volk published at Amsterdam.

Dutch troops fired on the Belgians, killing six and wounding nine of them.

The trouble has been attributed to the discontent of the interned Belgians at not being allowed to receive visits from members of their families. The unrest continues, and troops have been sent to Zeist from Utrecht to strengthen the guard.

Submarines Bottled Up.

Rotterdam, Dec. 4.—The new German submarines, which were assembled at Zebrugge, after the parts had been transported there by rail, are reported to have been trapped in the inner harbor owing to the destruction of the electric power plant by British warships' shells. The sluice gates through which the submarines must pass to get to sea are operated by electricity and they cannot be opened.

GEN. GUTIERREZ TAKES OFFICE

New Mexican Ruler Enters
President's Palace.

VILLA POLICES THE CAPITAL

Carranza Troops to Join in the March Against Carranza in Vera Cruz.

Juarez, Dec. 4.—General Eulalio Guiterrez, who was elected provisional president of Mexico by the Aguascalientes convention, has entered Mexico City and established himself in the National Palace, according to information received from the south.

Mexico City is quiet, the city being policed by soldiers of General Villa's army. An official proclamation has been issued from the National Palace, proclaiming Provisional President Guiterrez the constitutional executive. All persons hostile to the Guiterrez government are termed traitors.

It is learned for the first time that when the Villa soldiers under Raul Madero captured Pachuca, General Carranza, former first chief of the Constitutionalists, who later proclaimed himself provisional president, had a narrow escape from capture. Carranza fled with such precipitate haste that he left his sword and many valuable personal papers behind.

Say Carranza Seeks Peace.

Vera Cruz, Dec. 4.—It was reported here that General Carranza has opened negotiations with representatives of General Villa to restore peace between the opposing factions.

Villa Polices Capital. Washington, Dec. 4.—General Villa issued orders to his troops to maintain order in Mexico City and guarantee protection to private property according to advice received at the state department from J. R. Silliman, general at Mexico City.

Mr. Silliman also reported that the street railways in Mexico City are operating and all of the employees have been granted a 25 per cent increase in wages. The Mexican National railway is reported to have been badly damaged by the Carranzistas.

Unofficial advice indicated that Villa and Zapata are expected to begin their march against Carranza next week. Carranza is entrenched at Vera Cruz, and military experts look for heavy losses to the Villa forces when they assault the city.

Filibusters In U. S. Net.

Brownsville, Tex., Dec. 4.—Nine armed Mexicans, part of an alleged filibustering expedition of twenty-five members, were captured by United States cavalrymen near Hidalgo, Tex., according to a report received here.

The capture was made after an exciting chase. The Mexicans had gathered at McAllen, Tex., whence they were proceeding toward the Rio Grande. Reports reaching Brownsville indicate that this party of twenty-five was only a portion of a large filibustering expedition.

Lamar, Sentenced to Two Years, Is Released on Bail.

New York, Dec. 4.—David Lamar, sometimes spoken of as the "wolf of Wall street," was found guilty of impersonating Representative A. Mitchell Palmer, of Pennsylvania, to defraud J. P. Morgan & Co. and the United States Steel corporation.

He was sentenced to serve two years in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga. He was released under $10,000 bail, pending the filing of an appeal.

Lamar was convicted on two counts of the second of three indictments against him. The maximum penalty for Lamar's offense was three years in prison and $1000 fine.

Knox Opposes Thaw's Extradition.

Washington, Dec. 4.—Philander C. Knox, former secretary of state and former attorney general, who has been retained by the Thaw family to argue the constitutional question in the case of Harry K. Thaw, filed his brief in the supreme court of the United States. He contends that under the constitution one cannot be extradited unless charged with a crime in the state from which he fled; that by the New York statute the act of insane persons is declared not to be a crime, and that Thaw is, as between himself and New York, "an adjudicated lunatic."

Swallows $10 Gold Piece.

Tarrytown, N. Y., Dec. 4.—William Shew, who carries telegraph messages for John D. Rockefeller, believes in setting his Christmas presents early. He was sent to the bank by the local manager with a ten dollar gold piece. For safe keeping, he put it in his mouth. He would have delivered the coin as ordered, but he swallowed the coin and as he fell he swallowed the eagle.

CHECKING CATTLE DISEASE

Quarantine Raised in 25 Counties in Pennsylvania.

Washington, Dec. 4.—Secretary of Agriculture Houston raised the foot and mouth disease quarantine from a portion of the Chicago Union Stock Yards so it may handle cattle shipments from territory outside of the quarantined areas.

With the raising of the quarantine in some Pennsylvania counties twenty-six counties are now without restriction. Forty-six still remain under the government ban.

The quarantine against Pennsylvania was lifted, with the exception of the following counties: Adams, Allegheny, Beaver, Berks, Blair, Bucks, Butler, Cambria, Carbon, Chester, Clarion, Clearfield, Cumberland, Columbia, Dauphin, Delaware, Fayette, Franklin, Greene, Indiana, Juniata, Lancaster, Lawrence, Lebanon, Lehigh, Lycoming, Mercer, Mifflin, Montgomery, Montour, Northampton, Northumberland, Perry, Philadelphia, Schuylkill, Somerset, Sullivan, Venango, Washington, Westmoreland and York.

ASK WHY NEW YORK ESCAPES FARE RISE

Penna. Discriminated Against
by the Railroads.

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 4.—The protest lodged with the state's public service commission against the increase in railroad passenger rates, on Dec. 15, by the Pennsylvania, Reading and Baltimore & Ohio companies, assumed a new and more complicated form.

According to new complaints filed with the commission on Capitol Hill, Philadelphia, which has at various times complaints against freight rate advantages given to New York city, is no won the eve of seeing New York escape the disadvantage of higher passenger fares.

Not only New York city, according to the latest complaints, will escape higher passenger rates, but many points in New Jersey as well.

This is urged upon the Pennsylvania commission as evidence of discrimination against Philadelphia and other railroad patrons in Pennsylvania, and ground for interference, although the commission has no jurisdiction in the case of the New York and New Jersey rates.

H. L. Everett, a Norristown resident, who is engaged in business in Philadelphia, in protesting against the proposed abolition of the 100-trip ticket, which, he declares, "would mean aying full fare," calls the commission's attention to the fact that a representative of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western has made the following statement:

"There will be no increase in commutation rates out of New York on the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western. The Reading has increased the rates out of Philadelphia, but we do not intend to increase the rates in our New York territory. I suppose the rumor got around that there would be local increases in commutation tickets because of the increases in rates out of Philadelphia."

JOHNSON SIGNS WITH FEDS

Crack Washington Pitcher to Get
$17,500 a Year and $6000 Bonus.

Coffeyville, Kan., Dec. 4.—Walter Johnson, crack pitcher of the Washington American league team, signed with the Chicago Federal league ball club.

Manager Tinker, of the Chifeds, secured Johnson's signature to a contract for two years. Neither Johnson nor Tinker would divulge the figures in the contract, but Tinker said: "Johnson is getting the most money of any player in the world."

It is generally understood that Johnson is getting $17,500 a year and a bonus of $6000.

Irish Paper Suppressed.

Dublin, Dec. 4.—The newspaper Sinn Fein did not appear yesterday. The publishers refused to print it in consequence of having been warned by the authorities that they would be liable to prosecution for the publication of treasonable matter.

The President Completes Message.

Washington, Dec. 4.—President Wilson has finished writing his annual message to congress. It is slightly longer than last year. He will deliver it in person before congress on Monday.

NOTABLES IN THE LIMELIGHT

Baron Fisher, Who Is Britain's First Sea Lord.

For the second time in his career John Arbuthnot Fisher, Baron Fisher of Kilverstone, has been called upon to fill the position of first sea lord of the admiralty in Great Britain's navy. Born in 1841 and entering the navy at the age of thirteen, he rose to be first sea lord. This was in 1904. He retired from active service in 1910. He is not popular in the service, because he is a strict disciplinarian, but his work has won admiration.

It has been said of Lord Fisher that he stands in the same relation to the British navy that Lord Kitchener does to the army. More than to any other one man, the present efficiency of the British navy is due to him. When Fisher was appointed first sea lord in 1904 he proceeded to shake things up in a way that by many was regarded as revolutionary. He divided the effective war fleet into two—one in commission at sea, the other in commission in reserve. Then he massed most of the battleship strength in the North sea, believing that the next great naval battle would be fought in those waters rather than in the Mediterranean. His next step was to scrap every naval vessel that was not up to date. In the first three months of 1905 no fewer than 120 of such vessels were classed as obsolete.

As a fighter he has had wide experience. He fought in the Crimean war, the China war of 1859-60 and at the bombardment of Alexandria. The son of an obscure man, he attained the highest rank in the service, where aristocratic influence counts for much, on merit alone. His father was a captain in the Seventy-eighth Highlanders, who settled in Ceylon. Lord Fisher visited the United States four years ago to attend the wedding of his son to Miss Jane Morgan of Philadelphia.

Commander of the Emden.
The destruction of the German cruiser Emden by the Australian war vessel Sydney at Cocos Island, Indian ocean, brought to a close the career of a ship that had wrought great damage to English commerce. During her career of activity she destroyed English ships valued at $5,000,000 without their cargoes and sank a Russian cruiser and a French destroyer in the harbor of Penang, a British possession in the Straits Settlements. Captain Karl von Muller, the distinguished officer who commanded the

CAPTAIN KARL VON MULLER.

German cruiser Emden, is about forty-one years old and was graduated from the naval school at Kiel in 1891.

For some time Von Muller was admiralty staff officer of the German high seas fleet. Later he was stationed at Berlin and served on the immediate staff of Admiral von Tirpitz, secretary of the navy. The Emden was the first ship over which he had full command.

Following the Emden's exploit in the harbor of Penang, the city of Blankenburg, Germany, where Captain von Muller was born, bestowed upon him the title of "honorable citizen."

On account of the brilliant work done by the Emden in destroying ships of the enemy the kaiser bestowed the Iron cross upon the captain and the other officers and crew of the Emden.

People are still searching for Captain Kidd's buried treasure. This looks like a waste of time, as the captain, having money to burn, probably cremated it.

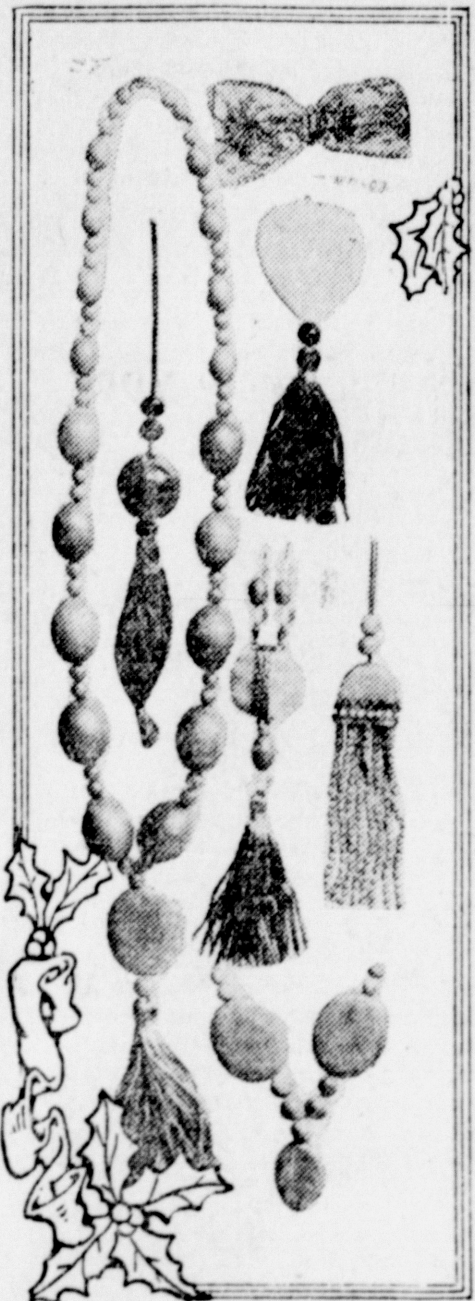

HANDSOME BEADS.

If in Doubt Buy Them For Milady or the Young Girl.

Nothing gives a pretty matron or a young girl more pleasure than to find upon Christmas morning gifts for her personal adornment. The beads shown in the shops just before holiday time are even more exquisite than at any other time of year.

Illustrated here are only a few instances of the many bewildering varieties. Following is a formula for a string of scented beads which can be made at home with very little trouble and expense:

Spice beads may be made by first procuring 10 cents' worth of allspice at the store and soaking it in water until soft. If desired the water may be darkened by the addition of a little ink. String through the center, alternating with any colored bead you may desire.

Then there are the rose beads. The bouquet of roses or any flower, in fact, may be converted into beads by boiling up fresh flowers with some mixture that makes the product look like dough; then the beads are kneaded by hand. This may serve to call your attention to the fact that this can be done, and then you may be able to find a formula for doing it.

Gifts Made of Willow.

What could be prettier in the up to date boudoir of any one than a willow lamp to match her willow chairs and the willow table and desk that she was given for her room? And really these willow house furnishings are the prettiest things! They make a room look so summery and comfortable at all times of the year. There is a general tendency toward simplicity in all sorts of house furnishings and in no place is this so marked as in the bedrooms and dressing rooms. Nothing that is not absolutely necessary is admitted in the up to date apartment, bungalow or small house, but the table lamp in the bedroom is one of the necessities, and the person who receives a Christmas gift of a pretty lamp like this will be very happy. Of course it is an electric lamp and can be moved from room to room if so desired.

Cheap Christmas Gifts.

Here is a suggestion for the girl who has little to spend for the pleasure of gift giving: Get a yard of fine handkerchief linen, which will make nine handkerchiefs. Fifteen cents' worth of floss will work a neat needle and a simple design in one corner of these, and you have nine hand embroidered linen handkerchiefs, and have you a friend who would not appreciate one? One evening will suffice for stitching. Then keep one where you can and will pick it up when you have nothing special to do, and you will have them finished without just knowing when you did it. Ten cents for a gift you may be proud of, too! Carefully chain stitch the scallop before embroidering. This will answer for a filling and also help to prevent fraying when the handkerchief is laundered.

His Answer Was Correct.

THESE delicious desserts are convenient to make when fresh fruits are not available.

Jam Pudding.—To make this pudding take two eggs, one cupful of sugar and one cupful of rather tart jam, half a cupful of butter, a teaspoonful of soda dissolved in hot water and a half cupful of sour milk. Mix with enough sifted flour to make a batter not quite as stiff as for cake. Bake in shallow tins and serve hot with the following sauce: Two-thirds of a cupful of sugar, butter the size of a walnut, two tablespoonfuls of hot water and one egg. Cream together and set over a pan of hot water. Cook until it is the consistency of thick cream.

Fruit and Suet Pudding.

Fruit Pudding.—Take a cupful of suet, chopped fine; one cupful of sugar, one cupful of milk, three cupfuls of flour, two eggs, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of cinnamon and one teaspoonful of baking powder. Mix suet, sugar and yolks of eggs together. Stir salt, baking powder and spice with the flour and add to mixture alternately with the milk; then add well beaten whites of eggs. Lastly, mix in one to two cupfuls of fruit. Boil steadily in greased mold for three hours or in pound baking powder cans for one and a half hours.

With Creamy Sauce.

Light Pudding.—Take two scant tablespoonfuls of butter, two tablespoonfuls of sugar and one cupful of milk. Let the milk come to a boil. Beat the butter and flour together. Add to them gradually the boiling milk and cook eight minutes, stirring often. Beat the sugar and yolks of two eggs together. Add to the cooked mixture and set away to cool. When cool beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth and add to the mixture. Bake twenty minutes in moderate oven. Serve with the following sauce: Take one-half cupful of butter, one cupful of powdered sugar, one-fourth cupful of milk and one teaspoonful of vanilla. Beat butter to a cream. Add sugar gradually. When light and creamy add vanilla, then milk, beating all the time. When all is smooth place in a basin of hot water and stir until the sauce is smooth and creamy, but no longer. This must not be kept in hot water long enough to melt sugar.

Easy & Practical Home Dress Making Lessons

changed into a tunic effect by adding a four-piece foundation.

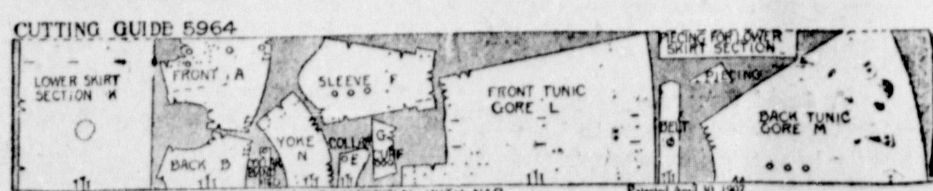

French dressmakers are chiding American customers for their unfaithfulness in accepting American fashions so readily, but it is hard to swear allegiance to foreign models when the home products are so attractive as the frock illustrated here. It looks wonderfully well in the ever-acceptable serge, especially if a rich brown shade is chosen. Collar and flare cuffs are of butter color batiste. Five yards of 44-inch serge and 1/2 yard of batiste make the dress.

The cutting of the dress requires unusual care, the lack of a lining making the construction very simple. The material is first folded so that the lower skirt section can be placed along the lengthwise fold. The front tunic gore is also arranged in the same way, but between this and the lower skirt section are laid the back, yoke, collar cuff and collar band. These also follow the fold of the material. The front, sleeves and back tunic are laid on a lengthwise thread.

The skirt may have a foundation, or be made in short, full effect. For the tunic, slash front gore to left of center-front on line of three small "o" perforations for opening. Pleat front tunic gore, creasing on slot perforations, bring folded edge to small "o" perforations; stitch as illustrated, and press. Join gores as notched, close back seam. Sew yoke to gores as notched. Pleat, creasing on single small "o" perforations in front gore, bring fold to double "oo" perforations; stitch as illustrated. Arrange on foundation skirt, centers even; stitch upper edges together. Sew to lower edge of waist over stay, centers even.

The belt is simple in design, but its proper adjustment is an important item in the development of the dress. If a foundation skirt is added it would be well to make it of contrasting material.

An American mode of unquestioned originality and chic. The skirt may be

Christmas

A Story

CHAPTER IV. The Little Nephew.

Jenny shook her head. "I got seven Christmas presents and ten Christmas friends, and I've only spent $2.50 on 'em all," she said, "for material. But I've made little things for every one of 'em. It don't seem as if that much had ought to hurt any one."

Jenny looked past her out the window, somewhere beyond the snow.

"They're something else," she added, "it ain't all present giving."

"Nonsense," said Mary Chavah. "Take the present trading away from Christmas and see how long it'd last. I was in the city once for Christmas. I'll never forget it—never. I never see folks work like the folks worked there. The streets was bedlam. The stores was worse. 'What'll I get him?' 'I've just got to get something for her.' 'It don't seem as if this is nice enough after what she gave me last year.' I can hear 'em yet. They spent money wicked. And I said to myself that I was glad from my head to my feet that I was done with Christmas. And I been preaching it ever since. And I'm pleased this town has had to come to it."

"It ain't the way I feel," said Jenny. She got up and wandered to the window and hardly heard while Mary went on with more of the sort. "It seems kind of like going back on the way things are," Jenny said as she turned. Then, as she made ready to go, she broke off and smote her hands together.

"Oh," she said, "it don't seem as if I could bear it to not have Christmas—not this year."

"You mean your and Bruce's first Christmas," said Mary. "Mark my words, he'll be glad to be rid of the fuss. Men always are. Come on out the front door if you're going," said Mary. "You might as well use it when it's open."

As Jenny passed the open parlor door she looked in again at the bare room.

"Don't you like pictures?" she asked abruptly.

"I like 'em when I like 'em," Mary answered. "I didn't like 'em I had up here—I had a shot stag and a fruit piece and an eagle with a child in its claws. I've loathed 'em for years, but I ain't ever had the heart to throw 'em out till now. They're over behind the coal bin."

Jenny thought. "They're a picture over to mother's," she said, "that she ain't put up because she ain't had the money to frame it. I guess I'll bring it over after supper and see if you don't want it up here, frame or no frame." She looked at Mary and laughed. "If I bring it to you tonight," she said, "it ain't a Christmas present—legal. But if I want to call it a Christmas present inside of me the town can't help that."

"What's the picture?" Mary asked. "I don't know who it represents," said Jenny, "but it's nice."

When Jenny had gone Mary Chavah stood in the snow shaking the rug she had left outside and looking at the clean, white town.

"It looks like it was waiting for something," she thought. "But it ought to know it won't get it," she added whimsically.

Then she went back to the warm room and saw the letter on the table. She meant to go in a moment to the stable to make it safe there for the night; so, with the gray shawl still blinding her head and falling to her feet, she sat by the stove and read the letter:

—because she wasn't sick but two days and we never thought of her dying till she was dead. Otherwise we'd have telegraphed. She was buried yesterday, right here, and we'll get some kind of stone. You say how you think it'd ought to be marked. That's about all there is to tell except about Yes. He's six years old now and, Aunt Mary, this ain't a place for him. He's a nice little fellow and I hate for him to get rough and he will if he stays here."

She tried to think who else could take him. They had no one. Adam, she knew, had no one. Some of the neighbors there by the ranch—it was absurd to send him that long journey—so she went through it all, denying with all the old denials. And all the while the weight in her body grew and filled her, and she was strangely conscious of her breath.

"What ails me?" she said aloud, and got up to kindle a light. She was amazed to see that it was 7 o'clock, and long past her supper hour. As she took from the clock shelf the key to the barn, some one rapped at the back door and came through the cold kitchen with friendly familiarity. It was Jenny, a shawl over her head, her face glowing with the cold, and in her mittened hands a flat parcel.

"My hands' most froze," Jenny admitted. "I didn't want to roll this thing, so I carried it flat out, and it blew consider'ble. It's the picture."

"Get yourself warm," Mary bade her. "I'll undo it. Who is it of?" she asked, as the papers came away.

"That's what I don't know," said Jenny. "But I've always liked it around. I thought maybe you'd know."

It was a picture which, in those days, had not before come to Old Trail Town. The figure was that of a youth, done by a master of the times—the head and shoulders of a youth who seemed to be looking passionately at something outside the picture.

"I won't take him," she said a great many times, and kept reading the letter and staring out into the snow. Her sister Lily's boy—they wanted to send him to her. Lily's boy and Adam Blood's—the man whose son she had thought would be her son. It was twenty years ago that he had been coming to the house—this same house—and she had thought that he was coming to see her, had never thought of Lily at all till Lily had told her of her own betrothal to him. It hurt yet. It had hurt freshly when he had died, five years ago. Now Lily was dead, and Adam's eldest son, John, wanted to send this little brother to her, to have.

"I won't take him," she said a great many times, and kept reading the letter and staring out into the snow.

For Lily she had no tears—she seldom had tears at all. But after a little while she was conscious of a weight through her and in her, acting in her throat, her breast, her body. She rose and went near to the warmth of the fire, then to the freedom of the window against which the snow lay piled, then she sat down in the place where she worked beside her patterns. The gray shawl still bound her head, and it was still in her mind that she must go to the barn and look it. But she did not go—she sat in the darkening room with all her post crowding in.

That first day with Adam at the Blood's picnic, given at his homecoming, they had met with all that perilous, ready-made intimacy which a school friendship of years before had allowed. As she had walked beside him she had known well what he was going to mean to her. She remembered the moment when he had contrived to ask her to wait until the others went, so that he might walk home with her. And when they had reached home there on the porch, where she had just shaken the rugs in the snow, Lily had been sitting, a stool—one of the stools now at length banished to the shed—holding the hurt ankle that had kept her from the picnic. Adam had stayed an hour, and they had sat beside Lily. He had come again and again, and they had always sat beside Lily. Mary remembered that those were the days when she was happy in things—in the house and the look of the rooms and of the little garden from the porch and of the old red cushioned rocking chair on the tiny stoop. She had loved her clothes and her little routines, and all these things had seemed desirable and ultimate because they two were sharing them. Then one day Mary had joined Lily and Adam there on the porch, and Lily had been looking up with new eyes, and Mary had searched her face, and then Adam's face; and they had all seemed in a sudden nakedness, and Mary had known that a great place was closed against her.

Since then house and porch and garden and routines had become like those of other places. She had always been shut outside something, and always she had borne burdens. The death of her parents, gaddies of need, worst of all a curious feeling that the place closed against her was somehow her self—that, so to say, she and herself had never once met. She used to say that to herself sometimes. "There's two of me, and we don't meet—we don't meet."

"And now he wants me to take her boy and Adam's," she kept saying. "I'll never do such a thing—never."

She thought that the news of Lily's death was what gave her the strange, bodily hurt that had seized her—the news that what she was used to was gone; that she had no sister; that the days of their being together and all the tasks of their upbringing were finished. Then she thought that the remembering of those days of her happiness and her pain, and the ache of what might have been and of what never was, had come to torture her again. But the feeling was rather the weight of some imminent thing, the ravage of something that grew with what it fed on, the grasp upon her of something that would not let her go.

She had never seen them after their marriage, and so she had never seen either of the children. Lily had once sent her a picture of John, but she had never sent one of this other little boy. Mary tried to recall what they had ever said of him. She could not even remember his baptismal name, but she knew that they had called him "Yes" because it was the first word he had learned to say and because he had said it to everything. "The baby can say 'Yes,'" Lily had written once; "I guess it's all he'll ever be able to say. He says it all day long. He won't try to say anything else." And once later: "We've taken to calling the baby 'Yes,' and now he calls himself that. 'Yes' wants it," he says, and 'Take Yes' and 'Yes is going off now.' His father likes it. He says yes is everything and no is nothing. I don't think that means much, but we call him that for fun." But Mary could not remember what the child's real name was. What difference did it make? As if she could have a child meddling round the house while she was sewing! But, of course, this was not the real reason. The real reason was that she could not bring up a child—did she not know that?

"He's six years old now, and Aunt Mary, this ain't a place for him. He's a nice little fellow and I hate for him to get rough and he will if he stays here."

That peaceful industry has its horrors as well as war is shown in the casualty list of American mines and quarries for 1913, just issued by the United States bureau of mines. This list gives 3,651 men killed in the year. The number of men injured was not tabulated, but it is estimated that it reached 100,000.

Altogether in the coal mines, metal mines and quarries 1,047,010 men were employed, and the death rate for each 1,000 men engaged was 3.49, or nearly three and one-half men.

Dr. Joseph A. Holmes, director of the bureau of mines, comes forward with the statement that, taking the hazards of the industry into consideration, this list of death and injury is excessive and unnecessary and a discredit to the industry and the country.

Commenting on the deaths in the mines, Dr. Holmes said: "We stand aghast at the slaughter in Europe as reports reach us concerning the terrible war that is raging, and we pride ourselves on our freedom from war through the adaptation of higher ideals and standards. Yet to me this report on the death in one year of 3,651 men engaged in a peaceful industry is quite as discreditable. And when we consider that this record is being repeated year after year the very thought of it becomes appalling. In the last three years, as far back as the records of the bureau covering certain branches of the industry go, the mines and quarries of the United States have swallowed up 10,487 human lives and have incapacitated temporarily probably a quarter of a million men. And the saddest part of it all is that a great part of this death toll and a still greater part of the injuries are not necessary."

Half Might Have Been Saved.

"I believe I am conservative when I say that half of the 3,651 men killed in the year 1913 might have been saved and three-fourths of the 100,000 men injured in the same year might have escaped injury had all the various agencies involved, the operators, the miners and the state and national governments, done their full duty in the matter. Perhaps none of these agencies has done its full duty. For the bureau of mines, as representing the federal government, I can say that owing to a lack of adequate funds this bureau has fallen short of doing its full part in this great safety movement, and I therefore hesitate to criticize the seeming shortcomings of any other agency."

"It is not to the credit of the United States that the very European countries embroiled in the greatest conflict of the ages kill in their mining industries but one-half or even one-third of the number of men we kill. I refer to the number killed for every 1,000 employed, which is a fair basis for comparison. According to the latest foreign statistics, Belgium killed one man in every thousand, Great Britain and France one and one-half men, and Germany two and one-half men, as compared with the American death rate of three and one-half."

"With such a crowsome record as has the United States in its mining industry, it is time something more drastic were done to bring this excessive loss of life down to a basis that will be more favorably comparable with other countries. It can be done, it should be done, and I hope that the American people will see that it is done."

Reducing Death Rate.

"Before the federal government began its attempts to aid in reducing the mortality of the mines the death rate was steadily increasing, and, although every year our coal mines grow deeper and more hazardous, as with increasing depth the explosive gases increase this increase in fatalities has fortunately been stopped, and the rate is now being slightly reduced. But this is only a beginning of what I hope will soon be a much greater improvement. What we really aim to do is to aid in saving the lives of at least two men in every 1,000 of the three and one-half men per 1,000 now killed in our mining operations. In an industrial army of over a million men working underground that will mean a yearly saving of more than 2,000 lives, and in the combined mining and mineral industries, employing two and one-third million men, I hope we can aid in preventing 30,000 to 40,000 accidents each year."

"It must not be forgotten that mining is and always will be a hazardous industry and that each year it will demand as its tribute to modern civilization a certain death toll. We cannot avoid the inevitable, but we can avoid the unnecessary, and that would mean each year the lives of at least 2,000 miners spared to the nation's wage earners and to their wives and families and a reduction to an extent of 30,000 to 40,000 in nonfatal accidents in the mining and metallurgical industries of the country. Surely this is something worth striving for."

A Good Record.

"Harold Percy doesn't seem to have any difficulty in getting engaged," "O. course not," replied Miss Cayenne. "All the girls to whom he has previously been engaged wear such stunning collections of jewelry."

APPALLING DEATH RATE IN MINES

Industry Claims Toll Almost as Big as War.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Griddle in Two Parts Makes Cake Baking Easy.

The griddle in the accompanying cut, which has been recently patented, requires no great dexterity, for when the cake has been properly cooked on one side its existence is not to be endangered by a bungling turning operation, which happens when the unskilled undertakes to perform it. Instead of turning the cake, with this improved idea the griddle is turned. It will be readily seen how this may be done with the two part iron. The unoccupied portion of the iron is turned over that which contains the cooking cake, and then the whole is turned so that the heat will get to the side to be cooked.

Household Helps.

Roll biscuits thin and use two cuts for each biscuit, laying one on top of the other. They are dainty and break evenly.

When frying cornmeal mush dip each slice in cracker dust. This makes a brown, crisp crust and also prevents the food from splashing over the range.

Before using tea spread it on a sheet of paper and place it in a warm—not hot—oven for a quarter of an hour. This improves the flavor and strengthens it, making the tea last longer.

Pumpkin Pie.

To one quart of pumpkin which has been stewed and pressed through a fine colander add one quart sweet milk, one tablespoonful cornstarch dissolved in a little of the milk, four tablespoonfuls melted butter, beaten yolks of three eggs, one cupful sugar, one-half teaspoonful salt and cinnamon, nutmeg and ginger to taste. Mix well, and just before adding to the crust fold in the beaten whites of the eggs. This will make four ordinary pies or three if baked in deep tins.

Lavender Sachet.

Fold a piece of sheer Swiss muslin 13 by 7 inches to make an oblong 9 by 7 inches. Bind with three-quarter inch lavender satin ribbon, leaving unbound a small opening at the end of one side until about one and a half ounces of lavender buds have been put into the pad. Finish binding, turn down the left hand corner and catch with a bow of the lavender ribbon. Buy one and a half yards of ribbon. This sachet makes a dainty gift and is inexpensive. Keep it in a bureau drawer.

Apple Brown Pudding.

Sprinkle brown sugar in the bottom of a buttered pudding dish, line the bottom of the dish with slices of buttered bread, put in layers of sliced cooking apples and between each layer of apples put some small bits of chopped orange peel and a little brown sugar. When the dish is full cover with slices of bread which have been moistened with hot milk. Bake in a moderate oven for thirty minutes and serve hot.

Amolox The New Discovery

Many Cures Reported Daily in Towns Where It Is Known.

The wonderful cures that are being made by this remarkable new remedy are almost beyond belief. A young lady from Ottumwa, Ia., for many years suffered from a bad case of eczema. Her face was a sight to behold; all covered with red blotches, pustules and pimples. So unsightly was her appearance she gave up all social life. Failing to find relief with doctors and remedies, she became despondent and discouraged. After a few weeks' treatment with liquid and ointment the scaly redness disappeared, pustules healed and she was entirely cured. A few months following her mother wrote that Amolox had done wonders for her daughter, and she was married last week. Seems like a fairy tale, doesn't it? Yet this is the truth. This is only one of the many cases that are being reported in towns where Amolox has been introduced and its merits have become known. Amolox is invaluable for eczema, psoriasis, acne, tetter, barber's itch, red nose or any skin affliction. Recommended and guaranteed by People's Drug Store, Baltimore street. Your money back if it fails to do what we claim for it. Trial size 50 cents.

MIGHTY POLAND BATTLE STILL ON

Germans Make Desperate Efforts to Move on Warsaw.

LITTLE NEWS FROM FRONT

General Rennenkampf Is Held Responsible For Kaiser's Success and Is Relieved of Command.

London, Dec. 4.—All reports agree that in northern Poland the battle is still undecided, and fiercely contested. With the Germans making desperate efforts to resume their forward movement in the direction of Warsaw.

From Petrograd comes the report that General Rennenkampf has been made the scapegoat on account of the Napoleonic coup which enabled the German forces to cut through the encircling Russian cordon. According to this report, the dilatory tactics of General Rennenkampf in bringing up reinforcements made the success of the German move possible.

Discussing the campaign as a whole a well known Berlin military critic maintains that the long resistance and the unexpected recuperative powers of the Austrians, coupled with Russian losses in Poland, have deprived Russia of such a large portion of her first line troops that her offensive power has been irretrievably impaired.

On the other hand, observers in Petrograd express the opposite view, and they are confident that Grand Duke Nicholas will prove himself more than a match for the admitted resourcefulness of General von Hindenburg.

Russian forces are now reported to be within ten miles of Cracow, while the situation of Przemyśl, the only other Austrian stronghold left in Galicia, is declared to be desperate.

The following Russian official statement is noticeably lacking in detail:

"On Dec. 1 there was a relative lull on all the fronts. In the region of Lwow the action continued, but with less intensity.

"Toward midnight the enemy, marching in compact columns, made a fierce attack against our positions to the north of Lodz, but were repulsed."

The Warsaw campaign of the Germans, which evidently was an attempt on the part of the invaders to carry everything before them by the swiftness and the boldness of the operations of a comparatively limited number of troops, appears to competent military experts in Petrograd to have resolved itself into a persistent grinding against the Russian center, with the recently arrived heavy reinforcements.

The main attempt appears to be centering around Lodz, and the German wings seemingly are intent only on holding the Russians against any flanking operations.

How Germans Cut Ring of Steel. Berlin, Dec. 4.—Referring to the Russian official communication of Nov. 23, German headquarters says:

"A great story of success for the German troops has come to light in the fighting near Lodz. The German forces were operating against the right flank and in the rear of the Russians when they, in their turn, were attacked by Russians, who pressed them hard, coming from the east and south."

"The German troops turned from the Russians with whom they were engaged and fought a very bitter three days' fight and broke through the Russian ring. In doing so they brought with them 12,000 prisoners, as well as twenty-five guns and lost only one German gun."

"The German losses naturally were not small, but they certainly could not be described as 'awful.'"

$1,500,000 FOR DELAWARE

House Harbors Committee Has This Proposal Before It.

Washington, Dec. 4.—Work of framing a rivers and harbors bill for the coming session of congress was begun by the house rivers and harbors committee, with estimates before it from the war department aggregating for waterway improvements.

The plan to eliminate all new projects and to cut the amount down to a minimum will, it is expected, precipitate a vigorous fight in the committee.

Approximately $1,500,000 is proposed for present appropriation for the Delaware included in the $6,000,000 standing authorized for ultimate expense of improving that waterway.

Facos More Canal Fraud Charges.

New York, Dec. 4.—Additional indictments against John Burke, an employee of the isthmian canal commission, as manager of the commissary department, were handed up by the federal grand jury, which has been investigating alleged frauds in the canal zone. In them Burke is charged with accepting two bribes, totalling nearly $10,000.

PALMER DECLINES FEDERAL OFFICE

Says He Will Work For Good Government in Penna.

Washington, Dec. 4.—Representative A. Mitchell Palmer, who became a candidate for United States senator in Pennsylvania at the behest of President Wilson, had a long talk with Mr. Wilson, the first since the election.

The conference was sought by the president and presumably dealt with Mr. Palmer's future.

After the talk, which lasted for nearly an hour, Mr. Palmer announced that he would not accept an appointment from the administration and would return to Pennsylvania after the end of his service in congress to continue his fight for good government in Pennsylvania. This is his present intention.

It is understood that in his conference with the president Mr. Palmer made his position clear, although Mr. Wilson suggested that he accept a federal appointment.

Child Drowns in Foot of Water. Philadelphia, Dec. 4.—Students of the Cheltenham high school found the body of four-year-old Henry Straub lying partly submerged in Tacony creek, beneath the Mill road bridge, in Melrose. The boy was drowned in a foot of water within 200 yards of the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Straub, on Mill road. The police believe that he fell from the bridge.

Farm and Garden

MAKING POULTRY PAY.

Conditions as Nearly Natural as Possible Should Be Provided.

The secret of success in raising poultry is to provide conditions as nearly natural as possible, says Professor H. L. Kempster. Such conditions the farmer-poultryman is in position to provide. With unlimited range at his disposal there is no need for him to crowd his poultry into small yards. Limited range, encumbered with large numbers of division fences makes it impossible to give the poultry yards proper cultivation. This causes them to become filthy and insanitary, a condition which is responsible for most poultry diseases. The success of poultry enterprises is usually measured by the extent of range provided for the purpose. Commercial plants which depend upon small yards are usually short lived. Better sanitary conditions would yield the farmer more satisfactory results.

The most common mistake in locating the farm poultry houses is that of placing it so close to other farm buildings that hens overrun the latter.

Poultry raising has resolved itself into two systems—the intensive system, involving houses of considerable size or many houses and a large amount of stock upon a small area, and the extensive or colony house system, in which small houses are scattered over large areas. The former advantage is that the labor resulting in the care of the flock, especially during the winter, is reduced to a minimum. In general the expense of housing is less than where fowls are kept in small flocks. It has the disadvantage of increasing the amount of yard care on account of the limited yard space.

The extensive or colony house system necessitates more labor in the care of the flocks during stormy weather when the birds are confined. It has the advantage, however, of unlimited yard space, and yard fencing can be quite largely eliminated. Often the poultry can be permitted the range of fields after crops are started, without appreciable injury to the crop, utilizing to good advantage the droppings which would otherwise go to waste. In some localities worthless land has been brought to a high state of fertility by this practice.

Hint to Buttermakers.

Overworking of butter injures the grain, yet there is less danger of overworking than underworking. Do not be afraid to work the butter properly. Take plenty of time and allow the salt to dissolve. Butter that is worked at intervals of one-half hour for four or five hours will be the butter free from mottles.

The Fishing Banks.

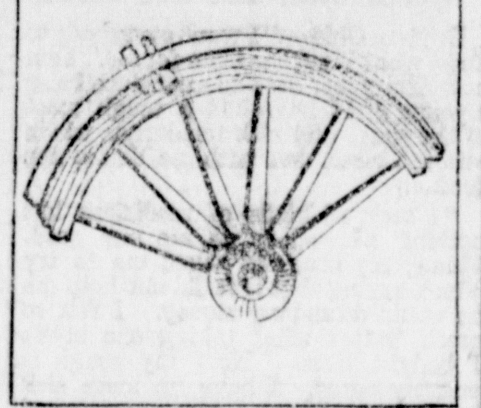

Newfoundland would be nothing without that great submarine plateau known as the "banks," on which all the fishing is done. At a small station within the edges of the great bank that the cod loves so well the sea is quite smooth. It is usual for vessels fishing on the bank to inquire from those that have arrived from the open sea as to what sort of weather it is "abroad."

Too Commercial.

Robbie—I saw you kissing sister again last night. Castleton—Well, I'm not going to pay you a quarter this time. Ten cents is enough. Bobby—That's the tendency in these days, to cut out the middleman and let the goods go straight from the producer to the consumer without charge.—Life.

To Tighten Wagon Tires.

A southern Iowa farmer, says the Farm Progress, uses a very ingenious scheme for tightening loose wagon tires. As is often the case with all farmers, this man is troubled with loose tires on some of his wagons, which when the weather becomes wet again are perfectly tight. He takes a long, tapering cold chisel (an old buggy spring would answer admirably) and drives it between the filler and tire directly over a spoke. He then makes a wedge of some hard wood, which he drives in as tightly as possible beside the chisel. The chisel is then driven out and the wedge cut off evenly on both sides, and the job is done.

Any one who has never tried this would be surprised at the degree of "set" that can be given to tires by this wedging them. In fact, until the wedges loosen by wear they are almost as tight as if set by the usual method.

LOOK THROUGH THE

MERCHANT'S EYES

If the manufacturer who seeks a market for his product will look through the eyes of the retailer his advertising course will be clear.

When the retailer advertises he uses the newspapers of his home city—because they bring him business.

It is over the counter of this same retailer that the manufacturer must look for his sales. If his advertising is in the newspapers, he and the retailer are doing the kind of "team work" that will bring greatly increased business.

Manufacturers with advertising problems are invited to address the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, World Building, New York.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you'll get a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old, famous Sage Tea Recipe are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray, becoming faded, dry, scraggly and thin have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful—all dandruff goes, scalp itching and falling hair stops.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

HAD SAME COUGH FOR SEVERAL YEARS

Woman Fifty Years Old—
Coughed More or Less
Since Childhood—Found No
Relief Until She Got Vinol.

Dayton, Ohio—"I want everybody to know what Vinol has done for me. I am now fifty years old and ever since I was a young girl I have had a cough most of the time, and sick headaches which left me weak and with no desire for food.

"I took all kinds of medicines but nothing seemed to do me any good. Finally my druggist asked me to try Vinol, saying that if it did not help me he would refund my money. I felt so much better after taking one bottle I bought more. Now my cough is entirely cured. I have no more sick headaches. I have a good appetite and feel better than I ever did in my life, and I cannot recommend Vinol too highly."—Mrs. J. C. SCHNEIDER, Dayton, Ohio.

Vinol is not a secret nostrum, simply a combination of the medicinal elements found in cod livers, together with tonic iron, contains no oil and is delicious tasting. We ask every man or woman in this vicinity suffering from chronic coughs, colds or bronchitis, and every weak, run-down person to try Vinol.

Sometimes a Clear Conscience Needs No Accuser

By LOUISE B. CUMMINGS

I was shopping one day when a woman in the place where I was buying dry goods was arrested for shoplifting. She seemed to be a lady and very much cut up. She endeavored to convince the proprietor that she was respectable and had no occasion to steal, but he was obstinate, and the poor woman was hustled off to a police station. A few days later I saw by a newspaper that the lady was the wife of a wealthy and prominent man. She lived in another city, and there being no one at hand to vouch for her, she spent the night in a cell. Her husband came for her, got her out and commenced suit against the dry goods firm for $100,000 damages.

This matter made so great an impression on me that I dreaded thereafter getting into such a position myself. I never went to a counter to look over goods but that I felt that the eyes of a detective were upon me.

One day while buying some goods I laid my bag on the counter to examine them. Several other persons came to the counter while I was there. When I finished making my purchases—they were to be sent home—I took up my bag and went to another counter, where I bought a spool of thread and, opening my bag to put in the purchase, noticed some bundles that I could not account for. Either they had been put in my bag or I had changed bags with some one else.

Remembering the case I have mentioned, I became terror stricken lest I should be arrested as a thief.

And here is where an innocent person is liable to incriminate himself. Unless very cool and collected there are nineteen chances in twenty that he will do the wrong thing, and there are nineteen chances in twenty that one, especially a woman, will not be cool and collected. I certainly was not, and I did not do what I should have done—that is, take the bag to the office and report the facts. My one desire was to get out of that store before the lynx eyed detective on duty should pounce upon me. I went toward the door in a great hurry, doubtless showing by my expression that I was a thief running away with goods.

I attracted the attention of a woman, who followed me out. I caught sight of her staring at me and, looking back on gaining the street, saw her coming behind me. I did not doubt that she was a detective, employed by the firm to watch shoplifters, and that I would be arrested as soon as she could secure the services of a policeman. I hurried on, she following as fast as she could. But she did not gain on me, for she was older than I and somewhat corpulent.

Seeing a cab standing beside the curb, I jumped in and told the cabman to drive me to my house. The woman, coming up as we were driving away, endeavored to attract the cabman's attention, but he did not see her. I saw her plainly enough, but I looked away, pretending not to see her. There was no other cab near, and I succeeded in getting away from the woman. When I reached home I ran in as quickly as I could, locked the door behind me, and after calling to the maid to admit no one I went upstairs to my room.

I had not been there long before there was a sharp ring at the door-bell. I remained in my room, shivering, and the summons was not answered. There was another and another ring, but after that whoever was there went away. I heard some one going down the steps and, looking out of the window, saw a policeman riding away on a motorcycle.

I determined to get away from the house before he could come back, but first concluded to examine the bag. It was not mine and contained a number of articles of no great value that were evidently purchases of a woman. Then I recalled that I had been at my jeweler's and brought away a valuable brooch that I had left there for repair. I had exchanged my brooch for a yard of cambric, six handkerchiefs, half a yard of dress lining and a number of other articles of no more value.

While I was preparing to continue my flight I heard a latchkey fumbling in the keyhole of the front door. I knew it was my husband and ran downstairs, opened the door and when he entered fell into his arms. In reply to his agonized appeals to be told what was the matter I finally gasped that I was about to be arrested as a shoplifter. This naturally astonished him, and he worked hard with me till he got the story.

"Nonsense," he exclaimed. "Some woman has unintentionally exchanged bags. Doubtless while shopping at the same counter with you you both laid down your bags and she picked up the wrong bag. When you turned for yours you took what was left."

There was another ring at the door-bell, and my husband insisted on going to the door. I ran upstairs and hid in the closet. Presently I heard him calling, but I remained where I was till he came upstairs with my lost bag.

The woman who had followed me, finding that she had exchanged bags with some one and seeing me leave the store, recognized me as one she had seen shopping beside her and had tried to catch me. Failing, she had sent a motorcycle policeman after me. He had returned, reported that he had failed to gain admittance, and the woman had come to restore my bag with a $1,000 brooch in it for her own containing articles worth very little.

Remedy for Croup.

Beat the white of an egg to a stiff froth, then sweeten a little and add a little pulverized alum. Give a teaspoonful every ten or fifteen minutes until relief comes.

PUT SULPHUR ON AN ITCHING SKIN AND END ECZEMA

Says this old-time Eczema remedy is applied like cold cream.

Any irritation or breaking out on the face, arms, legs or body when accompanied by itching, or when the skin is dry and feverish, can be readily overcome by applying a little bold-sulphur, says a noted dermatologist.

He states that bold-sulphur instantly allays the angry itching and irritation and soothes and heals the Eczema right up leaving the skin clear and smooth. Bold-sulphur has occupied a secure position for many years in the treatment of cutaneous disorders because of its parasite-destroying property. Nothing has ever been found to take its place in treating the irritable and inflammatory skin affections. While not always establishing a permanent cure it never fails to subdue the itching irritation and drive the Eczema away and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin.

Those troubled should obtain at any drug store an ounce of bold-sulphur, which is applied to the affected parts in the same manner as an ordinary cold cream.
